Krknjaši – oblivion in the blue lagoon

The Krknjaši cove on the Drvenik island, surrounded with Veli Krknjaš and Mali Krknjaš islets, is a real tropical lagoon from the picture postcards. It is not far away from land but a world away from mainstream tourism. Well known to yachtsmen and captains of megayachts who love to cruise these unspoiled waters and enjoy the secluded beaches, little known outsiders. The 7 km trip from the peninsula Ciovo to Krknjaši will take you passed several small uninhabited islands and will give you a real taste of being at sea, of sea kayaking, while never being really far from land. We paddle 3 or 4 hours at most. The rest of the time you can swim on small, hidden, untouched beaches, paddle around freely, enjoy snorkeling, watch the nature, or just walk on the island. You do not need any special clothes or shoes, just common swimming equipment and hats for the sun protection. There are dry chambers in the kayaks, where you can put all the things that should be protected from water or salt, such as food, cameras, clothes etc. This trip is designed to those little more ambitious, who are ready for „ocean“ adventures.
